“GETTING STARTED IN MEDICAL EDUCATION RESEARCH”

Learning Objectives:
1. Explain the purpose of research focused on medical education
2. Describe what compromises medical education research
3. Explore different types of scholarship opportunities for medical education research

Dr. Jean Bailey holds a Ph.D. in Higher, Adult, and Lifelong Education and a MA in College and University Administration from Michigan State University. She has experience serving as an adjunct and full-time faculty member, in dean-level positions including chief academic officer at the community college level, and as director and associate dean responsible for faculty development at two medical schools. Her research interests include teaching and learning, faculty and gender roles in higher education, reflection and mindfulness, and work/life navigation.

Dr. Cherie D. Edwards, PhD earned her PhD in Educational Evaluation and Research from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University and her MA in Conflict and Peace Studies from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. Dr. Edwards specializes in qualitative, visual methods, and mixed methods research methodology. Her research interests are exploring the implementation of mixed methods, qualitative, and visual research designs in studies examining social justice and equity in education research. Dr. Edwards is an Assistant Professor at Virginia Commonwealth University’s School of Medicine.
